

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION

The problem that I faced during my internship is that I had difficulty to get along with kindergarten children as a teacher assistant at AAKD. In this chapter I would like to discuss the result of my analysis in the previous chapters. I find that there are three causes of my problem. First, I had difficulty in speaking Indonesian. Second, the children were shy or slow to warm up. Third, the children did not trust me as a teacher assistant. I also find three effects of the problem. First, I could not run the lesson as I had planned. Second, I could not make the children obey me. Lastly, the children behaved badly to me. I propose three potential solutions to solve my problem. The first potential solution is I will hang out with my Indonesian friends. The second potential solution is I should develop positive relationship with the children. Lastly, I will be nice to the children by greeting them and smiling often.

I have decided to combine all of the potential solutions to solve my problem. First I will hang out with my Indonesian friends. Because my Indonesian is bad, I will try to communicate often with my Indonesian friends in Indonesian when hanging out with them. Second, I should develop positive relationship with the children by using calm voice and listening to them children. Last, I will be nice to the children by greeting them and smiling often, this potential solution will help me to make the children feel welcomed and respected by me.

If I only use the first and second solutions, I might be approaching the children, but the children might not like me because they think I am arrogant. Meanwhile, if I only use the second and the third solutions I will not speak Indonesian fluently, so I will still have difficulty to communicate with the children. Besides, if I only apply the first and the third potential solutions, I will not make the atmosphere of the classroom and the learning process great.

By analyzing the difficulty in getting along with the kindergarten children as an assistant teacher at Anugerah Abadi, I can get knowledge about how to approach the children. I hope this paper can help the reader who get same problem and they can use them as a references when have difficulty to get along with kindergarten children.
