This work would not have been possible without the financial support from the Indonesian Endowment Fund for Education (Lembaga Pengelola Dana Pendidikan, LPDP) and Radboud University. I am especially indebted to all of my supervisors, Prof. dr. Peer Scheepers of research methodology of the Department of Sociology; dr. Carl Sterkens, associate professor empirical religious studies, and dr. Edwin de Jong, assistant professor of the Department of Anthropology and Development Studies. They have been consistently supportive throughout my entire PhD project and worked tirelessly, occasional compassionately, to improve all requirements for an academic career. I am blessed with their assistance as they have actively monitored my timeline ensuring that I achieved my goals. As mentors, personal advisors, as well as critical colleagues, my supervisors have taught me more than I could ever give them credit for.

I am thankful to all the PhDs, staff members and the secretaries in the Department of Sociology as well as ICS organization with whom I have had the pleasure to work with, and most importantly, to have learned from them. I am grateful to all members of the Manuscript Committee who worked diligently to deliver positive notes on improving my dissertation.

I would like to acknowledge PSKK, especially Sukamdi and Yayan, for having supported me during my field work, and all PPI Nijmegen and LPDP Nijmegen members and others whom I befriended during my stay in Nijmegen, especially Fitri, Deni, Wawan, Anglita, Edwin, Ainul, Arien, Irwandi, Aris, Nani, Agnes, Chen Chen, Ming, Tara, Magnus, Magesa and Milan. I cannot forget all the support I received from the very beginning of my PhD journey from Ton Coenen, Robin Kayser and all members of the Faculty of Psychology at Maranatha Christian University, especially Indah Soca and Henddy Ginting for giving me all the practical survival tips as a PhD candidate, and Mrs Jacqueline Mariae and Mrs Irene Prameswari for all the bureaucratic support. I would also like to personally thank the following people: the late Dicky, Sonya, Guus, Dexon, Juwita, Runa, Ancil, Olin, Ides, Christine, Jeanette, Roos, Saskia and Ardita, who all have helped me adjust to life in Nijmegen.

Nobody has been more important to me in the pursuit of this project than the members of my family. I would like to thank my parents, my brother and sisters, whose love, prayers and guidance are with me in all of my journeys. I wish to thank my loving and supporting wife, Angga, and my two wonderful children, Artrisha and Asky, who have provided unending motivation. Above all, my journey through this life would not have been as it has become without the mysterious work of God.
