Kaneyuki Fukuda

Dear Mother,

I'm sorry for neglecting to write for such a long time. I hope everyone is safe. I also have joined the Special Attack Forces as I had been hoping and will be able to fall with the cherry blossoms. I will not forget your kindness during my life. My final duty to you as my parent will be to make an attack hitting my target. I certainly will go to attack by ramming myself into an enemy ship. Mother, please take care. Watch over our family for me. Please give my regards to everyone in the village. Please excuse me for going before you. Let's meet again in the gardens of Yasukuni. Fragrant young cherry blossoms in abundance. Together we go to the skies of Okinawa to fall.

My Will (March 1945, My Words to My Mother)

I will probably never see your face again. Mother, please show your face closer. But I don't want leave any memento for you. Because the memento will make you cry even ten or twenty years later. Mother, on the day I leave Koriyama, I will fly above our house. That is my farewell.

Lieutenant General of the Navy
Takijiro Onishi

I tell the spirits of the tokkotai (kamikazes).

I thank you from my heart for your brave fights.

Even though you believe the final victory (of Japan) and Died gracefully like cherry blossoms, Your faith has never been accomplished.

I apologize to the spirits of my men and their bereaved families With my death.

Next, I bid all the in Japan. It would be bliss if all of you realize that acting rashly, Throwing your life would only profit your enemy, and decide with Faith to follow the sacred order of the Emperor his majesty, and endure the pain.

While enduring your pain, do not forget the pride to be Japanese.

You all are the treasure of the country.

Yet in the time of the peace, adhere the spirit of kamikaze and do your best for the welfare of the Japanese race and for the Peace of the people around the world.

To Noriko and Aiko, Before the Sortie

Your father was chosen to be a captain of the kamikaze corps, and will be the first to die in the battle with eleven members, who have not even gotten to the age of twenty. It is a silly idea of an ordinary man to look for a way he can both survive and win the war. Now I will accept my death and make a suicide attack. However, only gods know how the war would turn out. I believe it is a true national crisis. Although I am going to die, that doesn't mean that I will completely die. I will live in eternal righteousness.

1. Don't ever feel lonely. You still have your mother. I lost my parents at my early age; however, I never lost my cheerfulness and could grow up big. Japanese children should be glad to hear about the brave deaths of their fathers at battles. If you still miss your father, look up the sky. I will be on the white cloud in the air and smile at you.

2. Be a gentle person. If we win the war, that doesn't mean that we would be delivered from the national crisis. It is important to study hard until the peace would come to the world and the happiness would come to the whole mankind. I would be very glad if you get on well with your mother and worship my ancestors and me. I am glad to serve my empire as a flying officer, and I will be a divine wind that brings the spring to our gods. You should always thank the Emperor for his graciousness, and even if the time passes, you should never forget your loyalty to the Imperial House and your piety to your mother.

3. Your mother is truly a good mother. There are many wives of flying officers, however, there are only few resolute Japanese ladies like your mother. I always thank her. One of my regrets is that I couldn't make her much happy because I was so busy at the war. If you grow up, take care of your mother for me. It is my wish. Now, houses are burnt down by enemy planes at various cities, and there are countless boys and girls who lost their parents. It really hurts me. You should not forget that you are both happy within the arms of your mother and your grandparents. There is so much to write about, however, if you grow up, listen to your mother, know about your mother's troubles and don't be disobedient to her.

Lieutenant Junior Grade Yukimitsu Tomizawa

Born in Hokkaido Prefecture

Kamikaze Special Attack Force Dai 19 (19th) Kongou-tai (Herculean)

Died in the Philippines in January 6th, 1945/ 23 years old

Father and mother, I believe that you are quite well. My fighting spirit is more vigorous than ever, and I will make a sortie again. The New Year's Day has come. I have decided that I see my 24th birthday come round at Yasukuni, because the rice cakes of Yasukuni Jinja Shrine are large. The picture I have enclosed with this letter was taken by Lieutenant Junior Grade Shimo. Look at the glitter of my eyes. Look at my fist.

I believe that you are the best parents in Japan. If the New Year's Day comes, please offer a lot of feasts in front of my naval uniform. My favorite is oz?ni (rice cake soup). I think soon you will be sit around a stove and talk about me. At Yasukuni Jinja Shrine, I will work enthusiastically as a deck officer. Mother, you should not cry if you hear report of my death in a battle. I will be waiting at Yasukuni Jinja Shrine. I am sure you will visit me there. Today, I am gladder than ever to receive sake from the Emperor. The enemy has come very close to us. If I don't do it, my father and mother would die. More than that, Japan will face a great trouble. I will accomplish my task, without being beaten by anyone.

The smiling picture of me looks like my father. I have my mother's picture in my backpack. Your picture always tells me that you will serve with me to the Emperor, and that you will be always beside of me. Mother, it is very reassuring.

Brother Yukio, please take care about home. Please help and get along well with Kaichi, Kahei, Kuhei, and Yasunori.

Please give my regards to my teacher. (1 kan is 3.75 kilograms) Please give my regards to my uncle and aunt in Otaru. Please give my regards to my uncle and aunt in Hakodate. Mr. Moroaki Kunimoto, thank you for you care. Uncle, I will make a great achievement on the battlefield.
