

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION

After analyzing the problem along with several potential solutions, I would like to present the chosen solutions in this chapter. During my internship I faced a problem namely difficulties in teaching English vocabulary to two children aged six and seven years old at Basic class in AK English private course. The causes of this problem are I do not have any experience in teaching vocabulary to children aged six and seven years old, I have to teach fifteen new vocabularies in one class session and the two children are tired and not able to concentrate on the lesson. This problem has three effects, first, the children do not feel excited to learn vocabulary. Second, the children are not able to remember some difficult words which are learnt. In order to handle the problem I analyze four potential solutions, namely I teach the vocabulary using pictures, I use games and songs to teach the vocabulary, I will only teach five-seven new vocabulary in one meeting and I give rewards if they study the vocabulary well.

In order to overcome my problem, the best solution is the combination of three out of four potential solutions. First I teach the vocabulary using pictures, I use games and songs to teach vocabulary and I give rewards if they study the vocabulary well.

I choose three out of four solutions because I believe that they are the most effective solutions to solve the problem. I will be able to teach English vocabulary well when using pictures, songs and games. Ginap states :

That is why games, songs with actions, entirety physical response activities, and tasks that involves coloring, cutting, and sticking, simple, and recurring stories work excellent. If the actions are pleasurable, they will be unforgettable, children will have a sense of accomplishment, and this will expand inspiration for further education (1).

In addition, I will give rewards if the children study the vocabulary well. Dawe said that, "Rewards tend to create a feeling of pride and achievement among student thus motivating them to be more productive" (par.5). I choose three out of four solutions because the three solutions can make the children learn well. I do not choose the fourth potential solution because sometimes the children can learn more than seven new words in one meeting and sometimes less than five new words.

I suggest that the teachers of AK should have a wide variety of teaching techniques of Basic English Vocabulary. I believe that the solutions that I choose can be applied by the teachers at AK private course in the process of teaching. Therefore, the teacher can improve their skills in teaching at AK private course.
