

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION

After analyzing the potential solutions in the previous chapter, I will choose the best solution to handle the problem of late deliveries of orders by P.T. Garuda Jaya Kencana. Therefore, I combine two solutions; first, the production staff must check the stock regularly and second, the production manager should set a production schedule for the staff so that they can produce the stock on time supported by good communication among staff.

The production staff need to check the stock in the warehouse regularly because the company must have sufficient stock of raw material and not be in the situation of being out of stock. The stock should be available and ready to be manufactured by the staff in the production section so that the company can deliver the order on the date of the customer's order. In addition, stock control must be managed correctly so that there is no lack of stock in the warehouse. Meanwhile, the production manager should set a production schedule properly to arrange the work in the company, especially in the production section. Setting a schedule is important to get all work activities to run effectively, so the schedule should be made as clearly as possible.

I choose these two solutions because P.T. Garuda Jaya Kencana should pay attention both to the human resources and company management. Human resources include the staff who control the stock and make the schedule. Meanwhile, company management is comprised of the setting of the production's schedule and the availability of raw materials in the company. The company has to notice the initial process until the final process of making the order. The company should supply the sufficient stock of raw materials in the warehouse first so they can be manufactured well. Then, the human resources have to be capable of setting a deadline schedule so that the stock can be finished in good time to meet the deadline. Furthermore, P.T. Garuda Jaya Kencana should evaluate all work activities regularly for better service, especially in delivering orders on time.
