

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION

In this chapter, I would like to present the best solutions based on the analysis in the previous chapters. I believe that the best solution is to combine two solutions. The first solution is having a teacher assistant. The second solution is communicating with the children and interacting with the parents to inform what the teacher needs and what the children have to do. I choose those solutions because I believe that those solutions can help the teacher to handle the children at EMFS.

I believe that having a teacher assistant will help the teacher to handle the classroom's discipline. The teacher assistant can monitor the children's discipline while the teacher is delivering the material. This will make the children feel comfortable in the class, and they can study in a good atmosphere. Based on my apprenticeship programme at EMFS, having a teacher assistant in the class is important because teacher assistant can give extra attention to the child that lack of discipline in the class. I also believe that communicating with the children and interacting with the parents to inform what the teacher needs and what the children have to do will help the teacher to know how to handle the children in the class. If the teacher knows the characteristics of the children, the teacher will know how to get along with the children. As a result, the children will feel secure and loved by the teacher in the class. Besides, by interacting with the parents, the teacher will be able to tell the parents what their children have done in the class, whether it is a good behaviour or bad behaviour. In addition, the parents will know what they need to do with their children. The parents will find that the teacher is willing to communicate about their children and want to participate in handling the children's discipline.

By implementing these solutions, there is a benefit for the children and parents. The children will feel comfortable to study at EMFS and the parents do not need to worry about their children who are studying at EMFS. On top of that, EMFS will be loved by the parents because of their ways of handling and taking care the children seriously. I suggest that EMFS should have a teacher assistant in each class, so every teacher in the class will be comfortable to teach in the class without worrying about the children's discipline.
