

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION

I choose the second solution which is adding new variation to the way of teaching. This solution can increase students' motivation to learn a lesson. Furthermore, if teachers can make students become more interested in the lesson and understand the materials better, the learning process will be successful.

A theory from Martyn also supports this solution, based on his theory, he says that techniques like games, films, quizzes and role-play can make the learning process more enjoyable. The techniques are very promising, lessen their boredom and make them become more interested in the lesson. Moreover, they will become disciplined students because they will enjoy and pay more attention to the lesson. However, there also negative effects of this solution. Nevertheless teachers should decrease the negative effects of this solution. Teachers should think more creatively in applying the teaching techniques, because making the learning process successful is a teacher's duty.

As a conclusion the second solution which is adding new variation to the way of teaching is the best solution. This can be applied when I did the internship, because it answers all the questions in the statement of the problem. With this solution I can choose the most suitable techniques to be applied in order to make the lesson more enjoyable, and this solution can also help the students reduce their boredom and raise their motivation in learning. Therefore this solution is very helpful to handle the undisciplined students.
